MINNA IRVING TRIUMPHS. Palmer B. Wells Convicted of Sending Her

Vile Letters. Minna Irving of Tarrytown, in a green silk dress and bonnet and a long seal sacque, was in the United States Circuit Court yesterday to prosecute Palmer B. Wells for sending vile letters to her. She testified that she had received 500 or 600 letters from him and knew his hand. They had a disagreement last August, and in October she sued him for August, and in October she sued him for $50,000 for defamation of character. He is a stenographer with a slender salary. She swore that four letters she received on Dec. 6 were in his handwriting. Her mother, Mrs. Odell, swore to the same effect.

Frank Roland, Sinclair Sanderson, Chauncey L. Ayres, and John King, business men and friends of Wells, testified that they were familiar with his handwriting, and that the letters, in their opinion, were not written by him. Joseph R. Scott of 411 Brondway testified that Wells reputation was good.

Wells testified that he did not write the letters, and first saw them after his arrest. He was asked if he put an advertisement in the dally papers of Dec. 6 reflecting on Miss Irving's character. He said he had no recollection of it. Anthony Cometock testified that he believed that Wells wrote the letters.

The jury found Wells guilty and recommended him to mercy. He was taken to Ludlow street jail and will be sentenced next Monday.

PATENTS for inventions procured promptly; low rates.

If it rains to-day, then Macintosh Coats, Umbrellas, and Rubber Shoes take precedence. We'd just as lief sell them as anything else, especially as they serve to introduce you to the facilities of our stores.

We have popularized the Macintosh coat by bringing the real Eng-lish-made article down to a fair price; $7.50 and upward.

At our 32d st. store will be found some Ladies' Macintoshes-garments that fell to us through the importer's failure to get them out in time for a large customer. We don't mind being used to distribute such merchandise when we can hand it over to the consumer at the usual cost of importation; $7 to

Being in the stores, whether ladies or gentlemen, you can hardly fail of noticing what an attractive variety of Neckwear is displayed. Its attractions are enhanced by its price, 50c.
